"STABBER" GUILTY: GOES TO INSANE HOSPITAL

Dominic Caprio, alleged maniac stabber of women in Municipal Court today was found guilty of accosting and annoying, and the case was placed on file on condition that he be returned to the Northampton State Hospital, from which he was recently released. Caprio was arraigned in court after being identified by Mrs. Leverett Stenstall Tuckerman of Bay State road.

YUCATAN DIVORCE "MILLER" ARRESTED

Philadelphia, March 17 (A.P.).—Gordon W. Dishaon of Upper Darby, Pa., today was arrested in the Federal district attorney's office, charged with getting money under false pretense and using the mails to defraud in connection with the alleged Yucatan divorce mill.

BRITISH SHIP, CRUSHED BY ICE, MAKES ST. JOHN'S

St. John's, N. F., March 17 (A.P.).—The British steamer Hilcroft put into St. John's today leaking and with her bows damaged by ice. She was en route from Cardiff, Wales, for New York.

Beer, Wine, Mirage?
A Missing Comet
Why Bull China?

By Arthur Brisbane

COULD V. DEBS, for saying as who thought about war, went to and stayed a long time. Perhaps that was a good idea. When you are fighting somebody in front you don't want your friends pulling at your coat-tail no matter how sincere the friends.

Mr. Debs has been pardoned and at the same time deprived of his citizenship, so that he cannot vote or run for office.

He probably couldn't be elected to office. Victor L. Berger, of Milwaukee, is the only Socialist, apparently, who knows how to get elected.

IS IT NECESSARY to rise in conference punishing Debs for his opinions? He was never accused of any crime when he was talking, and after all, the Constitution of the United States allows that.

THE BRITISH are wise in turning their backs on war as possible, and there are now sitting in the British Parliament twenty-three members that were in prison, as Debs was, for their opposition to the World War. Debs, now an old man, will never hurt anybody, certainly not this big government, its army, navy or police, all loyal to things as they are.

Admit that Debs is mistaken, there is no doubt as to his sincerity. His life has been spent in an earnest effort to help working men, and he should not be condemned to die, deprived of his citizenship. Opinions are not crimes.

WITH TWO MILLION ballots cast, the prohibition poll all over the country shows a 1 in favor of repealing prohibition, or modifying the Volstead act. You would say, "Then the Volstead act will be modified." But wait until Congress meets next year. Men that want beer or wine are not much excited about it, and wait until Congress meets next year. Men that want prohibition are not much excited about it, and wait until Congress meets next year.

But ardent prohibitionists that want nobody to have light wine or beer are in a deadly earnest about it, and will punish Congress next year.

SOUTH BOSTON HAS GREATEST 17TH EVER HELD IN DISTRICT

The invisible wreaths of General Washington and his intrepid band in fed and blue looked down upon South Boston today and listened to the measured tramp of 15,000 pairs of feet.

South Boston's annual parade—this year featuring the sequel—centennial of the British evacuation of Boston—was under way, under the gaze of 500,000 watchers.

It was a perfect day for the march. The sun shined brightly, the air was clear, and the sea was calm. The parade route was lined with thousands of spectators, and the atmosphere was festive.

The parade was the highlight of the day's festivities, and it was well attended. The route was lined with thousands of spectators, and the atmosphere was festive.

FINDS ROXBURY WIFE DYING; THROAT CUT

With a wound in her throat, and her body half in the bathtub, Mrs. Della P. Neil, 41, was found unconscious today in her home, No. 213 Washington street, Roxbury.

The woman was rushed to the City Hospital by Sergeant Purcell of Division 9, but owing to loss of blood died some hours later.

Inspector John McCarthy and Headquarters Photographer Gus Gill were sent to the hospital in the hope of obtaining the woman's statement before she died, but they were too late.

COL. COOLIDGE NEAR CRISIS IN 24 HOURS

Plymouth, Vt., March 17 (A.P.).—No new developments may be expected in the condition of Colonel John C. Coolidge for the next twenty-four hours, said a bulletin issued at 11:30 o'clock today by his physician, Dr. Albert M. Cram of Bridgewater.

"There is nothing new to be said about the condition of the patient," the bulletin said. "His heart condition is fair and temperature and respiration normal. He remains very weak, as he is unable to take any food."

$90,000 LOSS AT BAZE IN HAVERHILL BLOCK

Haverhill, March 17 (A.P.).—Damage estimated at $90,000 was caused by fire in the three-story brick structure No. 125-127 Washington street early today.

Three firms employed in different branches of the shoe trade suffered heavy losses by the fire. Nine other establishments also were burned.

The fire broke out shortly after midnight when an explosion, thought to have been caused by a heat pocket, occurred in The Bootery, a retail store, which had large plate glass windows and hurling the glass clear across Washington street. The fire spread to the roof of the building.

New England Is Joining Dry Law Repeal Cohorts

Entire families are participating in the national poll on the prohibition issue being conducted by the Hearst newspapers, from coast to coast, in co-operation with other leading dailies.

This participation in the balloting by EVERY adult member of many families clearly indicates the widespread interest in the question.

A Medford man sent in five votes to the Boston Evening American in favor of modification of the present law. Three were those of his wife and two daughters, and the fifth, that of a friend. The response has been overwhelming.

Results of the Boston Evening American poll are contained on page 2.

- 1—Are you in favor of the existing prohibition law?
Yes [623] No [5755]
 - 2—Are you in favor of local option?

American Budget Editor Solves Home Problems

By KATHLEEN BROOKS

There was a bargain sale, and the counter she found—my dear—the most marvelous orchid chiffon scarf you ever saw in your life!

And WHAT do you suppose it cost?

Ninety-eight cents!

Did you ever hear of such a bargain? Of course she bought it.

And what home.

And all the family admired it, but her mother said practical mother.

"What will you wear it with?"

"You haven't any orchid clothes."

There really wasn't a thing in her wardrobe that went with it so she got a look-out in the shops, and found a lovely orchid dress that with the scarf made a dream of color.

Well, dear reader, you probably know the rest, for you may have seen it in the window.

BRAZIL BARS GERMANY AND LEAGUE ADJOURNS

Geneva, Switzerland, March 17 (A.P.).—The League of Nations Assembly today voted to adjourn the question of Germany's admission to the league until the September session.

The vote came after announcement by Atilio de Almeida, Brazilian representative, that the decision of his country not to vote a permanent council seat for Germany unless Brazil was given one at the same time was irrevocable.

After approving President E. Brandt's motion to adjourn the election of Germany until the September session, the assembly adjourned six days at 1:15 p. m.

A brief session of the council had been held and rumors were flying regarding the chances for a last-minute settlement when President MacCord called the momentous meeting of the assembly to order at 1:30 p. m.

Extraordinary excitement prevailed in the Hall of Reformation as the delegates assembled and the galleries were jammed.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, took the podium and said that the announcement which he was about to make—"up" in a statement made in the representative of 20-21, Senator Mello Franco (Brazilian) went to the tribune to explain.

Referring to Brazil's projected veto, he said:

CRAZED MAN NAMED BY MRS. TUCKERMAN, WHO MAY PROSECUTE

The reign of terror among Greater Boston women, created by the attacks of an alleged maniac stabber, was ended today when Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall Tuckerman of Bay State road identified Dominic Caprio, arrested yesterday, as her attacker.

Caprio, shell-shocked war veteran who lives in Hanover street, was taken to Mrs. Tuckerman's home, where she positively identified him as the man who stabbed her while she was in the Public Gardens a week ago Sunday.

ACCUSES 27 DOCTORS IN DRY LAW CONSPIRACY

New York, March 17 (A.P.).—United States Attorney Buckner today filed complaints against twenty-seven doctors, druggists and four distillery salaried, charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Mr. Buckner described the accused as "prescription bootleggers."

The government investigation is in progress, and it is expected that more names will be added to the list.

'FLU' HAS CLAIMED 2,000 IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, March 17 (A.P.).—More than 2,000 cases of influenza have been reported to the Rhode Island health department, it was announced today, and this figure, from all reports does not include nearly all the cases in the state.

Reports from other sections of New England indicate that the epidemic has not reached a serious stage, with only a few scattered cases reported.

Particularly apparent has been in Providence, where 1,500 school children have been taken there, while in the neighboring city of Central Falls there are 100 more cases. In various parts of the Providence valley there are 150 more.

San. Providence reported 200, while the Providence police department has cancelled all funerals for the officers. At every roll call, the police chief reported, men are reported too ill for duty.

At the Newport Naval Training Station, fifty cases were reported while a number of Brown University students are unable to attend classes. It was denied, however, that the University would be closed because of the epidemic.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE SEES AN 'IDEAL IRELAND' IN THE FUTURE

EVACUATION DAY RECALLS COLONIES' 'THRILLING FIGHT FROM WHICH NATION SPRANG

CALLS UPON EVERY KINSMAN TO AID LAND OF HIS BIRTH

By WILLIAM T. COSGRAVE
President of the Irish Free State

I GLADLY take the opportunity afforded by the Boston Evening American of sending my most hearty greetings to St. Patrick's Day to the many readers of Irish descent who, especially at the feast of St. Patrick, love to remember a country from which they sprang.

Our country is one of unbroken tradition. Slowly but surely in the ages of dim antiquity civilization was developed and the arts improved.

When St. Patrick undertook his great mission to the Irish people he came not to a barbarous people in need of civilization, but to civilized people in need of Christianity. With his coming, pagan worship was abandoned and the civil law reformed while the ancient culture persisted. Buffeted with a new light, the ancient traditions of the people seemed to cling to the very soil itself. As people of alien race settled in Ireland they adopted the traditions of the Irish people and helped in building up the Irish nation which at last has come into its inheritance and as a free state seeks to take its rightful part in the councils of the world.

In the work of the future the people of Ireland will need as much as ever the sympathy and encouragement of their kinsmen in other lands. Much remains to be done if the Irish state is to be a successful interpretation of the nation's life. It must be built on a sound economic foundation. There must be power for industry. There must be well organized transport which is particularly necessary to an agricultural country. There must be self-reliance on the part of each individual in the community, no matter in what capacity he contributes his part to the general industrial life of the country. This is the feeling which is growing in Ireland.

My message to all Irish readers of the Boston Evening American is one of hope for our country's future and to all those who visit their country's shores I extend a hearty welcome. They will find many changes, but they will find one thing unchanged—the determination of the Irish people to hand down to posterity free national institutions and a spirit of self-reliance worthy of the traditions which forever must be associated with name of our Patron Saint.

VOTER SINCE 1865 FINDS HE IS NOT CITIZEN
Livingston, Mont. March 17 (A.P.)—A voter and frequently an office holder since the Civil War, Charles Angus, 84, deputy clerk and recorder of Park County, found that he is not an American citizen when he appeared before a naturalization examiner here yesterday on behalf of a friend, who was seeking citizenship papers.

Angus, who is a native of England and a veteran of the Civil War as well as numerous Indian campaigns under the late General Nelson A. Miles, said he understood that because of service during the war of the rebellion he automatically became a citizen.

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1926

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

BOY SHEIK BOASTS OF DEEDS TO POLICE

Taken in Second Chase After He Eludes Cambridge
Pursuers Once

Girls of the Sargent School, Radcliffe and other Cambridge schools may roam the streets at night at ease, for the "Hugger in Overalls" has been captured. More than that he was made captive through the pluck of a girl whom he attacked.

The overalls Don Juan is 14 years old John Mullin of Somerville, who boasted of his attacks on other girls and women in Cambridge, while the intended victim who brought him into the city is Calena La Blane, telephone operator.

Miss La Blane was returning from her work at the office on Beacon street when she noticed a lad in blue overalls, a 17-year-old boy, who had heard her scream and they gave chase to "the Hugger" until she felt two arms about her and she screamed and her assailant ran.

She called to Francis Scully, a 17-year-old boy, who had heard her scream and they gave chase to "the Hugger" until she felt two arms about her and she screamed and her assailant ran.

Again she gave chase, while Scully summoned Patrolman William Gurney, who joined in the pursuit. Mullin was finally captured.

Either unconscious of the enormity of his acts or in sheer bravado, Mullin boasted at the station house of his attacks on women in Cambridge. He admitted that he had been previously to that on Miss La Blane, including the particularly cruel attack on Miss Anna Donahue, who was beaten over the head with some blunt instrument.

EFFIE CHERRY LOSES IN
"LONGER SKIRT" CAMPAIGN

—Effie Cherry, member of the once famous Cherry sisters vaudeville team, has failed again in an attempt to win political favor. She received only 247 votes as a candidate for Mayor in the city primary.

Effie campaigned on a "curfew, cleaner city and longer skirt" platform. She will now go back to the duties of her home life.

LYNN TOLLS TELLS OF ARGUMENTS OF ST. PAUL

Rev. Milford L. Forbush, of Lynn, preached today at the noon service in Tremont Temple on "Seekers After God." It was through St. Paul, when he stood face to face with the cultured Athenian philosopher, that he brought the message of the Gospel to the world.

The singing was by the Pilgrim Male Quartet. Paul Forbush of Paris gave the invocation and after the service.

'FONDLING' SUSPECT AND PHONE OPERATOR WHO PROVES SHE'S GOOD COP

John Mullin, caught by a Cambridge telephone girl after he had fooled pursuers and apparently got away. He is alleged to have hugged her and many other girls.

Miss Calena LaBlane, telephone operator, clashed with the "hugger" and twice chased him before she could catch him, but who finally landed him in the strong clutch of the law. Now, she's a heroine among all the other girls. This is diagram of the attack in human street.

This is Miss LaBlane, whose friends all had her during in catching the overalls suspect, who is said by police to have admitted his guilt.

HOUSE REBUKE ON PHONE RATES REMOVED

The rebuke administered by the House to the Public Utilities Commission for granting huge increases in rates in the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company has been removed through the deflection of action of Speaker John C. Hull of Louisiana.

Following their denunciations of the commission by speakers in favor of advancing the P.U. bill, requiring that all decrease future rates charged by public service corporations issued by the commission be subject to the approval of the Governor and council. Hull cast his vote for the first time during the session. The Speaker's vote resulted in a tie, 77 to 77, and the bill was not ordered to a third reading.

Representative Chauncey Peppin of Salem, father of the bill, immediately announced that he would move for reconsideration at today's session. He said:

The Gilchrist Co.'s advertising has been on this page almost daily for two years. Now, so that this page may be devoted entirely to news, the Gilchrist Co.'s advertising will be found almost daily on Page 5.

Sues Cigar Firm

Maria Jeritza asks $25,000 damages from a New York firm, alleging they named a cigar, "La Jeritza," and used her picture, without permission.

SPEAKER HULL'S FIRST VOTE KILLED BILL

Speaker John C. Hull of the House killed the bill which would make orders and decrees of the Public Utilities Department subject to the approval of the Governor and Council.

Voting for the first time since he was elected to preside over the lower branch, Speaker Hull declared himself against the bill, thus creating a tie vote at 77 on the question of ordering the bill to a third reading.

BRITISH FLAY WAR CLAIMS 'COLLECTION'

London, March 17 (AP).—The Morning Post, in an editorial headed "The Good Samaritan," expresses much concern over the attempt of Senator Borah yesterday to prod the State Department on the settlement of the claims of American citizens against Great Britain and France arising out of violations of neutral rights prior to America's entry into the World War.

The Morning Post bids Senator Borah beware lest other neutrals turn on the United States.

"It is notorious," says the newspaper, "that the blockade only became effective when the American navy got to work. The damage done to neutrals before the entry of America would certainly be balanced by the damage done after she became a belligerent and, as we all know—for the Americans have said so—was really they who did everything when they came in."

"Therefore if the Senate raises this question, the Americans themselves may be faced with claims of Sweden, Norway, Holland and Denmark, which suffered severe restrictions which the United States navy finally imposed."

"The Morning Post, however, has decided to treat the reported claim as a political joke until it is assured of its seriousness. It concludes by declaring that if a claim is made so British government will entertain it."

New York, March 17 (AP).—Mayor Van-Deusen Daves should try his "Melody in A" on the Senate. He has written a musical composition which is described by Dr. W. B. Dentinger as just the thing for hysteria. It was tried out at a meeting of the National Life Conservation Society.

CALAIS NOMINATES CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR

Calais, Me., March 17.—Ernest Woodman, 32, was nominated for Mayor at the annual Republican primary. He will oppose Glen Cleveland at the election to be held April 5. Cleveland was nominated on the Non-Partisan ticket. Woodman is the youngest man to have ever been nominated by local Republicans.

COAL GAS KILLS 2 WOMEN IN WORCESTER

Worcester, March 17.—Coal gas caused the death today of two aged women whose bodies were found in their third-floor tenement at No. 26 Beacon street by firemen, called by neighbors who thought the house was on fire.

They were Mrs. Mary Bates, step-mother, wife of a Civil War veteran, and Mrs. Annie Ellenworth, a well-known housekeeper.

They went to bed after experiencing trouble with the kitchen range, in which soft coal was being used, according to other occupants of the building. Neighbors smelted the coal gas this morning and also saw a light haze of smoke drifting through the house. They called the firemen, who broke into the apartment.

The body of Mrs. Bates was found on the floor of a bedroom, as if she was overcome while attempting to throw open the windows. Mrs. Ellenworth died in bed.

District Chief Jewell of the fire department and Police Sergeant Louis R. Calais laid the tragedy to soft coal gas.

A mother and her year-old baby were saved from asphyxiation by escaping flaming gas in their home at Brookfield by the timely arrival of John Stone, the husband and father. They were overcome while the mother was reading in the living room and the baby was asleep in a crib nearby. The leak could not be discovered.

LYNN AROUSED BY FIGHT OF SISK WITH COP

Lynn is thoroughly aroused to-day over an encounter in the corridor of the district courthouse when Attorney William Sisk, brother of Judge James H. Sisk of the State Supreme Court, is said to have been roughly handled by Patrolman James Burnett.

Sisk was counsel for Michael D'Agness and daughter Josephine, whose place in Lynn was ruined last week. They went on trial before Judge Kiley in Lynn court on charges of illegal keeping and selling.

There was testimony against them by Patrolman Burnett and other officers. The hearing was closed on Saturday.

Along with Sisk came from the courtroom into the corridor Patrolman Burnett was standing with Sergeant Macklin and Patrolman Wall and Murphy. All witnesses against the D'Agness father and daughter.

Atty. Sisk, according to police made profane remarks derogatory to the police.

"Just a moment," said Burnett, "are you talking about me?"

At the same time Patrolman Murphy and Wall stepped forward toward Burnett and the lawyer.

Sisk is said to have put up his hands, either for offensive or defensive action. Then, according to spectators, Patrolman Burnett struck down the lawyer's guard, seized him by the throat and pushed him forcibly against a corridor wall.

Just then Police Chief William J. Thorne hurried up and persuaded Burnett to abandon his arrest plan.

SOUTH BOSTON HAILS TODAY'S EVACUATION DAY CELEBRATION AS GREATEST EVER

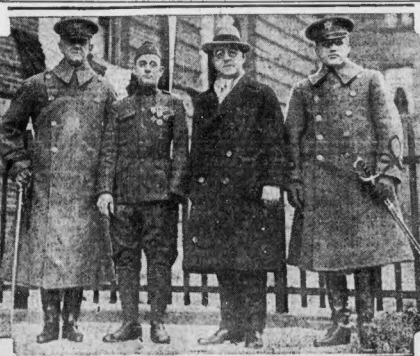

Arthur J. Lewis, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was one of the many notables at the breakfast served by the South Boston Citizens' Association in the South Boston Municipal building. The association directed the celebration in the district.

South Boston kiddies—and their elders as well—were on hand early to seize the best points of view for the parade which boasted of 15,000 marchers, both military and civilian. Those youngsters, left in right, Mary Hale, Mary O'Neil and Margaret Kennedy, were waiting for nearly two hours and were rewarded by a spectacle that was truly worth while. The parade started at 2 o'clock and in five more than thirty bands depicted the historical episodes in American history.

William H. Taylor, toastmaster at the breakfast. Among the speakers were Governor Fuller, U. S. Senator Butler, C. S. Senator McKelvie of Tennessee and Lieutenant-Governor Allen. The breakfast officially opened the celebration of Evacuation Day in the district.

More of the notables who attended the Evacuation Day breakfast in South Boston Municipal building. Left to right, they are Major-General Preston Brown, John Hamilton, wearing his old World War uniform, in which is pinned a Distinguished Service Cross Major-General Edward L. Logan, commander of the Twenty-sixth Division, National Guard, and Captain James C. Crockett. General Logan is also a native of the district and a judge of the local court.

Congressman James A. Gilman of South Boston declared that today's celebration was the greatest in his memory. It was through "Unit" efforts and those of Senator Butler that the Federal Government was induced to make an appropriation for the celebration.

START TODAY ON YOUR BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN BUDGET PLAN

had a similar experience. The number of her bargains went on to buy a complete new outfit to go with it, and that $100 purchase was one of the most expensive she ever made. The whole trouble was that the original bargain had no place in the girl's plan of dressing. And the best dressed people are those who dress with a plan.

ACCORDING TO PLAN.

Just as the best dressed women are those that are furnished according to a plan. And just as the best managed incomes are those that are spent according to a plan.

Budgeting doesn't mean strict economy and no fun. It doesn't mean saving as much as possible and spending as little as possible. It DOES mean getting the most for what you spend and having what you most want for your money and what you will most enjoy.

The budget motto is Plan your spending, and spend according to your plan.

People who run on a budget usually find that their expenditures fall into five main divisions—shelter, food, clothing, operating and personal. Add another division, savings, and we have the foundations on which to build our budget.

BRIEFER HEADING.

Under shelter comes the rent if you live in a house or an apartment, taxes and mortgage interest if you own your own home. Under this heading comes also fire insurance and heating if you own your own home, as well as upkeep and repairs. Home budget builders group these items under other heads; but

THEY ARE FOR 'A BUDGET IN EVERY HOME'

Mrs. Arthur B. Bishop, vice-chairman, Department of the American Home, Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Joseph Lottman Barren, member of the Boston School Committee, who urges not only a money budget, but a "time budget" also.

Mrs. Mary G. Thompson, president of the Women's Trade Union League, who recommends budget for working women.

Mrs. Edith McChesney Patterson, budget expert of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, a national organization of 1,000,000 women.

insurance, upkeep and repairs, and sometimes heating, are paid by the landlord if you live your house, so that they seem to fall most properly under the general head of shelter. "Operating" means the other general running expenses of the home—lighting, gas, telephone, laundry, soap, etc. Some people call this item "Maintenance." If you can think of a better term, use it. Many like to have several different divisions for expenses of this class. We are here offering merely a guide, which readers may adapt to suit themselves. "Personal," called by some budget makers "Development" or "Advance ment," means practically everything that is not an absolute necessity of life. It includes recreation, such as movies, theatre, an automobile that is run solely for pleasure, vacation, reading matter, church, charity, club and lodge dues, entertainment of friends and so on. How much ought a family with $50 a week to spend on such of these items?

The answer is not easy, for two families, even with the same number of members and the same-sized pay envelope, have such different tastes, living standards and demands upon their money that their budgets would look as different as their faces. For a guide, however, let us start with the figures given by one expert, who says that a moderate income should be divided somewhat as follows: Shelter, 1-4; food, 1-4; clothing, 2-20; operating, 2-20; personal, 2-20; savings, 1-10.

Let us suppose our family has three members, father, mother and one child. If your income is received by the week, it will be easier to keep a weekly budget; if by the month, a monthly budget. One-fifth of $50 for shelter would be $10. In these days of expensive housing our family share it has to pay $10 a month, if it is to live on a reasonably near the schools and churches, and within fairly easy reach of the business district. To find how much $10 a month is per week, we multiply by 12 and divide by 52. This gives us $11.54, which is the amount the family must put aside each week toward the monthly rent bill. If we allow one-quarter of this income for food, we have an allowance of $11.50. If mother is a good manager, she can probably get along with less than this and have the balance for something else. So we will call the food allowance $10.50 a week, for a trial.

WIDOW AGAINST HANGING OF CHAPMAN

New Britain, Conn., March 17 (U. P.).—Mrs. Katherine Shady, widow of the postman slain the morning of October 12, 1924, in the Davidson & Lovell department store, by Gerald Chapman, sees no hope of hanging the latter for the crime. "There is no use of talking a life for a life," she told the International News Service today, as she reluctantly talked about the approaching hanging of Chapman which is scheduled for April 6, at Connecticut State Prison, Waterbury. "My husband is gone now. They can never bring him back to me, so what's the use? It's nearly a year and a half since he's dead and it seems only yesterday."

Her youngest son Francis, aged fourteen, took a different view of the hanging. "I only wish I could be there to see the other strap around Chapman's neck," he said.

STAR SPORTS NEW WILLYS-KNIGHT

Miss Mary Ann Dentler, of "Aloma of the South Seas" company, has bought her second Willys-Knight.

CHEVROLET, IN USE 13 YEARS, GOING STRONG

Found: The oldest Chevrolet in active service.

A. R. M. Stone, stationary broker of St. Louis, Mo., still drives a thirteen-year-old Chevrolet which has traveled 260,000 miles, a distance ten times the circumference of the world. He believes this machine is the oldest Chevrolet still in use.

Mr. Stone, a former locomotive engineer, purchased the car in 1913, the first year of Chevrolet production. The loss of a leg had incapacitated him for railroad work, in order to operate both the clutch and brake pedals with his one foot he connected them with a cross bar. This enabled him to throw out the clutch and apply the brakes in one operation. His drives from 50 to 70 miles daily within a radius of 40 miles of St. Louis.

RICKENBACKER SPEED TEST

"Canonball" Baker hung up an enviable record when he crossed Grandy Bridge, Florida, a span of five and six-tenths miles, in four minutes 35 seconds, in his Rickenbacker Vertical Eight, a stock car. He flashed across the great span which connects Tampa and St. Petersburg at the rate of 75.3 miles per hour.

Grandy Bridge is not perfectly straight, but curved and the roadway is narrow. Baker made his spectacular run at 3 a. m.

As the bridge is a privately-owned cut therefore it was an easy matter of have it closed to traffic for the brief period necessary. Therefore no laws were broken and no rules taken by him but the intrepid driver himself and his four passengers—all newspaper men.

LOVEJOY FINDS BIG MARKET

Lovejoy shock absorbers find a big market in far away Australia, according to George M. Crittenden, sales manager of the Lovejoy Manufacturing Company, who displayed the merits of the Evershield combination device to thousands at the auto show.

One Australian motorist drove a set of these shock absorbers 35,000 miles, then took them apart and found them perfect in every way. Mr. Crittenden said.

He furnished some interesting facts on shock absorbers. Manufacturers of the Maxwell car standard used on Lovejoys after rigid tests.

A. R. M. Stone, of St. Louis, Mo., has driven this car 260,000 miles in 13 years.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY OBSERVED WIDELY

Charitable Irish Society Elects
Services in Catholic Churches

Catholics of the Charitable Irish Society and of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic, featured the observance of St. Patrick's Day in Boston.

The annual dinner of the Charitable Irish Society will be held tonight at the Hotel Somerset. Governor Fuller, Mayor Nichols and others will respond to toasts.

The saint's day was observed by services in the Catholic churches. Parochial schools were closed and in many parishes special observances were arranged.

J. A. E. O'Neill this evening. The Charitable Irish Society, observing the 13th anniversary of the founding of the organization, first met at Young's Hotel. Joseph A. F. O'Neill, master of the Prescott School in Charlestown, was elected president and other officers were named for the coming year.

A feature of the meeting was the election of Daniel G. Finnerty, of Nahant, who has completed 50 years as a member, to be honored with an honorary membership of the society. President O'Neill, the officers chosen were William J. Drew, vice-president; John B. Dore, treasurer; John J. Keenan, secretary; John J. McGrath, assistant secretary; Michael General Francis Henry Appleton, National Guard (retired), keeper of the silver key; Hugh A. Carey, Francis P. O'Connor, Joseph P. Keefe and Thomas M. Green, directors.

A. A. R. I. R. MEET.

The program of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic, at Faneuil Hall, opened with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, followed by reading of the Irish Republic Declaration of Independence by James Conway, a World War veteran and one of the organizers of the American League.

New members elected were Daniel A. J. Doyle, Herbert A. Stephens, Edward C. Keefe, John F. Donnelly, John P. Myron, Michael J. McCarthy, Louis M. Tracy, Dr. Daniel L. Lynch, Captain James A. Laffey and the Boston police traffic division. James A. Reardon made Joseph J. Walsh.

Resolutions expressing encouragement and support, and the hope that the near future will see a celebration of the Irish Republic in Ireland, were adopted and will be forwarded to supporters of the cause of the Irish Republic in Ireland. They were read to the gathering by Miss Monica Papp, a national director of the organization. ERIN COMPLETELY FREE.

Mr. Reilly declared that next to Christmas, St. Patrick's Day was the most widely celebrated of all days. St. Patrick, Christianizing the Irish people without a single drop of blood and that in itself is a miracle of history, he said, "I am so because his principles stayed put. Irish people are not only true to their religion and their God but to their motherland."

"We shall have more cars this year, but since we are selling more than ever, the only way a customer can be reasonably sure of having his new car when he wants it, is for him to place his order now."

"Deliveries between January 2 and the end of February this year amounting nationally to 13,459 vehicles, compared with 13,410 for the corresponding period last year, show a gain of 49 per cent."

"Our own local business has far exceeded this percentage."

An auto show of its own in their showroom at No. 79 Commonwealth avenue is the innovation introduced this year by the Boston Flint Company.

The exhibition includes a full display of the various models, including models No. 90, 91, 92 and the Flint Junior. That latter model is the new car announced at the New York automobile show. It is listed as the lowest priced Flint ever built. It is designed to meet the demands of motorists who desire Flint quality in a low-priced car.

Federal Grand Jury

The Federal grand jury for the March term—which lasts until June convened and following the usual instruction by the court, George R. Pashby of Pittsburgh was named foreman. The next will be in session for the remainder of the week.

Cries 'That's Man!'

The Back Bay woman said she did not believe the man and a half inch tall found in Caprio's possession was the man who had stabbed her severely.

The identification took place after two other victims of the stabber, one of them, Miss Florence McEachern of Beacon street, had failed to identify Caprio.

Owing to the hysterical condition of Miss McEachern, the other young woman at the time they were attacked, the police believed they were unable to give a good description.

Mr. Tuckerman, much more poised, had no difficulty in recognizing her assailant, who is said to have been recently discharged from a hospital for the insane.

Mrs. Tuckerman told the Boston Evening American later that she will prosecute Caprio if the police do it.

COMMON IN PARIS.

"Even though my mother-in-law, Mrs. Charles Tuckerman, is a prison reform worker," she said, "I will not let it stand in my way if the police want me to prosecute. I think it is my duty, in order to prevent a recurrence of the stabbing."

"The man's war record does not condone his doing about and stabbing people. I am more interested in seeing him incarcerated where he can't follow his peculiar mania, than I am in prosecuting him."

"The man is quite common in Europe, particularly in Paris, but I did not think it would reach this side of Boston."

"I sympathize with prisoners, having visited prisons numerous times with my mother-in-law, but I do think a man of this type should not be allowed to run at large."

Mrs. Tuckerman was up and about after spending one and a half weeks in bed as a result of the attack made on her. She said her physician told her the wound was "quite deep" and it took a long time to heal.

DESCRIPTION FITS. With her husband and two children Mrs. Tuckerman is staying at the home of her mother-in-law pending the completion of the remodeling of her own home in Salem.

Policewoman Mrs. Mary A. Burroughs brought the man in on the charge of assisting her on the Charles River Esplanade. She, with

After the identification Caprio was taken to central district court by Officer Philbrick of the Metropolitan police, who made the arrest, and a warrant charging assault and battery was applied for.

"That is the man," said Mrs. Tuckerman when brought face to face with the prisoner. "Although I hesitated ten days or more ago."

In an inside pocket he had a strange weapon, just such a weapon as might have been used to inflict the stab wounds on women victims. It was a nail, little more than two inches long, with each end filed to a sharp point.

Caprio could give no explanation whatever of what use he made of the strange tool, if it was. He said he used it as a toothpick but this did not satisfy his questioners.

Compare it with your own. Your laundry is probably worth much more! The bigger the family the more the laundry is worth.

Years ago, when clothes cost less, ordinary soap seemed good enough. But now—more than a hundred dollars' worth of clothes in a week's wash! Harsh soap is no longer an economy but a positive extravagance!

For just 4¢ more than you pay for ordinary soap you use Lux—save your clothes, add many extra weeks of life to every piece—dollars saved!

For years Lux has guarded the fragile beauty of your fine fabrics. You know how quickly it refreshes exquisite silk underwear and hosiery, your delicate woolsens. You know how kindly Lux treats your hands.

Now, in the laundry, too, Lux works these same miracles. Rich, creamy, sudsy Lux makes all your clothes as fresh and sweet as new. And best of all, they stay new so much longer with Lux!

And your hands! What a difference Lux makes in them. You know what harsh soap does to hands—how cruel those stinging, burning soaps can be! Lux is as kind to them as the finest toilet soap. Always sold in packages of two sizes enough in the big new ones for two average washings. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

For all fine laundering for washing dishes

P.S. In hard water it actually costs less to use Lux because it takes so little to get rich cleansing suds.

Feel Glorious!

Nicest Laxative,
"Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, bilious, constipated, sick! One or two Cascarets, any time will gently stimulate your liver and start your bowels moving.

Then you will both look and feel clean, sweet, refreshed; your head clear, stomach right, tongue pink and your skin rosy.

Because cheerful, harmless "Cascarets" never grip, inconvenience or sicken, "Cascarets" has become the largest selling laxative in the world for men, women, children, boys or any age group.

Compare it with your own. Your laundry is probably worth much more! The bigger the family the more the laundry is worth.

Years ago, when clothes cost less, ordinary soap seemed good enough. But now—more than a hundred dollars' worth of clothes in a week's wash! Harsh soap is no longer an economy but a positive extravagance!

For just 4¢ more than you pay for ordinary soap you use Lux—save your clothes, add

many extra weeks of life to every piece—dollars saved!

For years Lux has guarded the fragile beauty of your fine fabrics. You know how quickly it refreshes exquisite silk underwear and hosiery, your delicate woolsens. You know how kindly Lux treats your hands.

Now, in the laundry, too, Lux works these same miracles. Rich, creamy, sudsy Lux makes all your clothes as fresh and sweet as new. And best of all, they stay new so much longer with Lux!

And your hands! What a difference Lux makes in them. You know what harsh soap does to hands—how cruel those stinging, burning soaps can be! Lux is as kind to them as the finest toilet soap. Always sold in packages of two sizes enough in the big new ones for two average washings. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

For all fine laundering for washing dishes

P.S. In hard water it actually costs less to use Lux because it takes so little to get rich cleansing suds.

MORMON PIONEER, HERO OF OLD WEST, DIES AT 86

Salt Lake City, March 17 (A.P.)—Joshua Rogers, pioneer telegrapher and frontiersman, who played a leading part in the most picturesque phase of Utah's history, is dead here after a colorful 86 years of life. When seven years old, Mr. Rogers studied shorthand under Ben Pitman, originator of the shorthand system. This was the foundation for his reputation as the fastest and most accurate shorthand reporter in Utah. At the age of eight, Rogers was baptized into the Mormon faith in Preston, England. He came to America in 1845 and crossed the plains as a member of the Martin Handcart Company. This train was massacred in Mountain Meadows, southwestern Utah, and Rogers was one of the survivors. He reported two of the trials of John D. Lee, leader of the massacre, in which 127 persons were killed, and

WOMAN HUNTED AS BROOKLYN "FIREBUG"

New York, March 17 (A.P.)—A woman maniac, believed responsible for fires in fourteen frame tenements and two other buildings in Brooklyn, was sought today. Police believe the woman is a resident of the Flatbush district and may have been crazed by recent fires there. Speculation that the fires were the work of a demented young woman was based on reports to Fire Marshal Brophy and police. In at least two incidents, neighbors said, a woman, apparently twenty-five or thirty years old, was seen emerging from tenement hallways shortly before the fires. Most of the fires were started in rubbish in the cellars.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY Royalty and Near Royalty Leaving American Shores for Europe

THAT H. R. H. PRINCE AAGE of Denmark, that popular and much-loved Danish Royal scion, sails away overseas on the 20th without returning for a Boston stay is much regretted by those who met and entertained him when he flitted through town recently.

A HALO OF ROMANCE surrounds this youthful Prince who, through a disastrous bank failure, has lost one enormous fortune, while inheriting another and means to serve with that famous French outfit, the Foreign Legion, in their desert warfare with the cliffs in Morocco.

DURING A LEAVE OF absence from the Legion (which he joined as an officer after service in his own Royal Guard) he is on a tour of this country and Great Britain as a lecture tour which took him through Boston, New York, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other important social centers.

NEAR ROYALTY recently with us also are sailing away to their homes across the sea—the Duchess of Norfolk and her daughter, Lady Harlow Howard, return to their London establishment, 51 St. James square, after a whirl from Boston to Washington.

VIOLET, DUCHESS OF RUTLAND (mother of that English beauty and stage star, Lady Diana Manners), leaves these shores on the 26th en route to England after a tour of the United States in the wake of Lady Diana and "The Miracles."

AND, SPEAKING OF London and our Ambassadorial family there, I hear that the Ambassador and Mrs. Houghton are leaving Grosvenor and taking up their official residence at No. 14 Prince's Gate. A genial and well liked family, the Houghtons, with high place in the inner British circles.

VERY TRIO and smart in new leaf green, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller headed the receiving line for Howard Smith's reception and gave view at the Vose Galleries. She made a charming contrast to her portrait, hung just opposite the receiving line, and depicting the handsome first lady in evening dress of the same brilliant green.

JUST NEXT MRS. FULLER stood Mrs. Curtis Guild, a stately figure in a straight-line costume of soft coral velvet and matching lace with wide-brimmed straw hat backed with glistering leaves. Mrs. Howard Smith, the artist's wife, wore an ensemble of palest gray crepe, most becoming to her petite blonde self.

NATURALLY, THE FOUR small Fuller children, as done into by Mr. Smith, came in for much pleasant criticism and comment, as did the portrait of Mrs. Smith, a pleasant figure in wide, shady hat and icy Summer frock of Britanny blue.

EVERY ONE in Richard Platt's smart circle is delighted that he is to be one of the artists at his musicale this afternoon.

MRS. NINA MAY FORD, soprano, is the assisting artist, and has for her accompanist, Miss Hilda Vinson, while at the tea urn for the social hour following the music Mrs.

TURN 'CRIMSON' TO ORANGE

Editors of the Harvard Lampoon celebrated St. Patrick's Day by staging a march on their rivals of the Crimsons and plastering the latter's building in Flimpton street, Cambridge, with orange paper.

Then, headed by a two-piece band lustily playing "Tipperary," the Lampooners made a tour of the dormitories. The marchers were all in costume with green sashes, one wearing a green silk hat.

Richard Field, president of the Crimsons, hurriedly called to view the depredations, ordered that no counter-attack be made on "Lampy." It was stated that unforeseen circumstances may delay the St. Patrick's Day number of the Lampoon until Friday.

Million Gallons From Ocean for Chicago Fish

Chicago, March 17 (A.P.)—A bit of the sea—one million gallons of genuine ocean water—is to be transported to Chicago.

George F. Morse, director of the $2,000,000 Shedd Aquarium to be erected in Grant Park, is making a survey of Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts to obtain the seawater.

Synthetic salt water lacks the organic content and chemical constituents without which salt water fish cannot live, Morse said. The shipment will require 125 railroad tank cars of 8,000 gallons each. The million gallons will be stored in a huge reservoir.

COP IS ON TRIAL FOR RAID TIP

Special Officer William P. Hartigan of the La Grange street station faced a trial today on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer.

Hartigan, it is alleged, raced through a Turkish bath a half-hour before a raid was scheduled from his station, warning the proprietors and occupants.

According to the police, the raid was to have been their second in a campaign to root undesirable frequenters of baths through the city. Local detectives are said to have shadowed the place for two days.

Death came at the home of J. Robert Conroy, secretary to Representative Fenn of Connecticut, and now Stubby is to be mounted and presented to the Smithsonian Institution.

Picked up by members of the 102nd Infantry on Ypres Field at

New Haven in 1917, Stubby was taken overseas and was in several offensives. At Belcheper he was wounded by a shell. He was given his medal from humane societies for work on the battlefield.

He was a faithful and lively figure at all American Legion conventions and often headed their parades.

AMERICANS IN CHINA WARN WASHINGTON

Fear Armed Action to Follow Ultimatum Will Imperil Many Lives

Peking, March 17 (A.P.)—Ten American residents of Peking, representing the Rockefeller Foundation, Yenching University, a joint missionary institution, and the Presbyterian and Methodist missions, called on John V. A. MacMurray, the American minister, today, and urged him to prevail on the Washington government to prevent American participation in possible armed action to reopen navigation of the Pei River to Tientsin.

The protest was yesterday delivered an ultimatum to the Chinese factions engaged in hostilities in the Tientsin-Taku region, demanding that the blockade of Tientsin be raised. The ultimatum declared that if the Chinese had not complied by Thursday noon, the naval authorities of the foreign powers would take such measures as they found necessary.

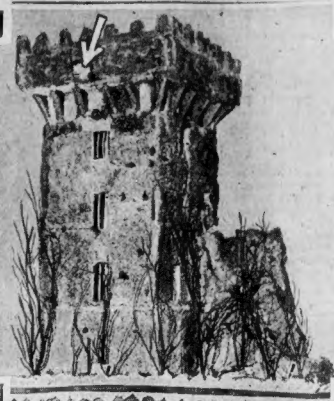

The Americans who visited the minister today asserted that armed action would constitute a departure from American tradition, policy of friendship toward China and would result in a marked increase of anti-foreign feelings and injury to American interests in China.

Up to late this afternoon the Chinese foreign office had given no indication of its attitude toward the ultimatum of the foreign powers.

The headquarters here of the Kuomintang national army, controlling the Peking government, showed an inclination to view the matter from the standpoint of China's national dignity.

In unofficial circles there was much talk of a Chinese appeal to the League of Nations.

her as he never had belonged to her before.

Ranny's Change

Every night he came home for dinner at The Nest, before his office. Afterward he would help Sylvia with the dishes and then they would settle down to read, or go for a walk, wiping up at the moment in all probability, to see the magical time of their engagement, when Ranny had seemed to want no one but her.

And Sylvia was forced to admit that Ranny had been right when she said "Nothing makes a man settle down more than a child does."

For the mere prospect of fatherhood had achieved Ranny and made him settle down in a way that seemed nothing short of a miracle to Sylvia.

You're a reformed character, Ranny. Do you know it? she asked him gaily one day as she sat on the arm of his chair with her cheek against his.

Months ago I was afraid I was going to lose you to Fay, after all. You seemed to be so great about her."

He stopped her lips with a kiss. "Forget Fay," he said, "I have." But if he had forgotten Fay, she was not going to let him forget her so easily.

One afternoon late in October he dozed, and Sylvia, who had been peeling carrots for dinner, wiped her hands, took off her apron and hurried to the door.

There, in the blue-gray dusk of the autumn afternoon, stood Fay, with her arms full of yellow chrysanthemums, she came in filling the air of the living room with their sweet and the freshness of the outdoors she had come from.

"Go ahead with whatever you are doing, honey," she said, kissing Sylvia on both of her cheeks. If you were cooking, let me go out to the kitchen with you, and—"

"She followed Sylvia into the kitchen. Sylvia's blue and white kitchen apron she did not attempt to help.

Instead she settled herself on a chair and proceeded to smoke a cigarette after cigarette, just as if she could puff them away.

"What in the world have you got doing with yourself for the rest of the month or so?" she asked. "I want to see you for perfect again."

Fay's Call

Sylvia flung her shoulders "Oh, nothing much. Just keeping up my darning socks and—"

"Ranny and I haven't seen the great old long that I bet they've all forgotten what we were for."

Sylvia put her carriage on the stove and turned up the flame in the stove so that it would be bright but for Ranny's chime when it was time to put them on.

She smiled her smile and turned out the light above the sink.

"Now, then, my love, are you let's go into the other room and talk in comfort," she suggested, and they settled down by the tiny wood fire.

It was not until that Sylvia noticed how elaborately Fay was dressed this afternoon, she had in a new frock of the shade that Ranny called "wicked green."

Eight Women in Ten

have discarded old hygienic methods for this new way—true protection—discards like tissue.

WHEN the world started concealing more of women, the old-time "sanitary pad" had to go. Doctors urge a new way. Millions employ it. You wear sheerest frocks without a second thought, any time, anywhere. You meet every day unhandcapped.

It is called "KOTEX"... five times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad!

Thoroughly disinfectant... thus ending ALL fear of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No fuss. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy simply by saying "KOTEX," at any drug or department store. Costs only a few cents. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

KOTEX

No laundry—discard like tissue

was handed with dark fur, and in it Fay looked like some Russian princess painted by Titian.

"Now, why is she all fixed up like that just to come over here to see me?" Sylvia asked herself.

The answer flashed into her mind like a red hot missile.

Fay hadn't come there to see her at all. She had come there to see Ranny, no doubt pushed by his long stare.

As Sylvia's eyes passed over her she stole a look at the little jeweled watch on her white-freckled wrist.

Why, she'd even picked the time of day when she knew Ranny'd be here! Sylvia gasped inwardly. It was almost beyond belief to her that a girl would follow up a married man, as Fay was pursuing Ranny, particularly when that man happened to be married to her best friend!

Well, it's just about time I squelched her good and hard!" Sylvia went on, to herself. "She must be in love with Ranny, after all, and it's time she snapped out of it!"

Sylvia Tells Fay

Until that moment she hadn't dreamt of breathing a word of her secret—and Ranny's—to anyone but Ranny.

And it was with a painful little wrench of her spirit that Sylvia made up her mind that she had to tell Fay the wonderful truth—to let her know that there was a love between herself and Ranny, now, that nothing must break.

She was glad of the dusk all around them—the friendly blue twilight that was like a screen between her and Fay, when she spoke.

"We haven't been going out much lately," Fay said, "because we haven't been feeling very peppy."

"You don't get tired to death about a baby coming," Sylvia said.

"She never forgot the look on Fay's face when she said that."

Even though the half-darkness hid how the green eyes widened with surprise and the mouth felt like a lump.

"How very wonderful!" Fay said at last when she found her voice. "Aren't you thrilled to death?"

Fay Goes Away

Sylvia shook her head. "Not what you'd call thrilled to death. You don't get excited to death about a baby coming. It's something deeper and quieter than being thrilled—"

And that's the way it came to Sylvia the feeling that came to her when you know about it," she said. "It's the sort of feeling you have when you go to church early on Easter morning."

She never finished the sentence, for Fay was getting out of her chair and speaking as mechanically as a talking machine.

I think it's the most wonderful thing I ever heard of," she was saying jerkily. "Think of you with a girl who'll be the sweetest thing in the world as a mother—"

"I've got to go, Ranny," she said. "I've got to go, Ranny, I've got to go."

She had not been gone for more than five minutes before Ranny came in.

He walked out into the kitchen where Fay was sitting, and he was smiling by both arms and looked down into her face with the new, worshipping tenderness that he always had for her, now.

"What's my sweetheart been doing today?" he asked, kissing her forehead, pear-white under his misty dark hair.

"A lot of—old jobs that had to be done, sooner or later," Sylvia answered.

That's all she had heard of Fay for the last two weeks.

Then, one afternoon, he called her to go for a walk.

They went alone all afternoon. They took the sunny length of the Beacon street and rambled around the Museum, stopping to look at the big engine in the pumping station, years before, and were happy to go, for the first time in months.

"I feel as if I was in my real life again," Sylvia said to Ranny that night at dinner. "I've been so jealous of her for the last two weeks."

She said that to Ranny, who was sitting at the head of the table, looking at her with a steady gaze.

The Letters We Never Wrote

SOMETIMES it's "ALAS! AND ALACK!" And sometimes it's "GOODY-GOODY!" Sometimes how funny it is—sometimes how tragic it is—sometimes how lucky it is—that we didn't write those letters that we meant to so much.

The letter that we meant to write to the man company about that terrible bill of course—we knew it was too high. No gas bill could be that high—don't you know? In the burning moment of its receipt we composed a marvelous, an ingenious, a burning, scathing letter to them—bidding them get that extra charge if they could—telling them exactly what a poor opinion we had of them. We never sent it. The configuration died down—and we made out the check like a lamb and sent it off promptly. Was that comic—or tragic—or LUCKY?

few months that I really couldn't like her, as I always had. She was crazy about you—and I knew it—and couldn't do anything to stop her from being in love with you. If she hadn't been my best friend, I think I would have scratched her eyes out.

And that was the end of the Fay affair—or almost the end of it.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Dr. Reed on Combating Disease in the Schoolroom

WHETHER your interest in the prevention of infectious or contagious diseases depends upon the protection of your own loved ones or the conservation of the race in general, a survey of the field of endeavor along the lines of combating such diseases in schools is most important.

In order to combat the spread of infectious diseases three definite measures are recommended by modern science—isolation, disinfection, and vaccination—and while the principles, on which these methods are based seem to be fairly simple, their fulfillment in practical life is sometimes comparatively difficult.

In school prophylaxis, some of the above measures are absolutely impracticable, others are difficult and complicated, and very few enough to the second, measles, mumps and chicken-pox.

The Letters We Never Wrote

The letter to the income tax collector—poor man. We certainly lay in our little bed the night we finished adding up what we owed the government and wrote in our mind a masterpiece of literature—those dignified—consuming. The government would have shivered up like a piece of bacon if it had ever got that. But it didn't. We just sent in our check the next day after the midnight it was due and worried for four days should see that it was a bit late.

The "sorry letter." The first advance—the "I was to blame." Love sweeps over that sometimes—the unborn letter that might have smoothed his path.

The thousand letters that were to be written on your vacation. You saw them so clearly in your mind—mailed in a neat bundle—with an appropriate, witty, kind message suitable for each of your family and friends—that you feel a glow of satisfaction as though they had been written and joyfully received. But you never did send them.

The letter—there is always THIS letter—maybe you, like many have more than one of these ghostletters—that comes to you, in the middle of the night and makes you miserable in the dark—this letter you longed to write, to someone you really thought of, the letter you put off and every word of by heart, an often you had written it in your mind, the kind, the sweet letter that someone wanted, the letter you DID NOT write, the letter that cannot now be written because it is too late!

The letters that were never written!

THE LETTER THAT YOU REMEMBER IN THE MIDDLE OF THE NIGHT—NEVER WRITTEN—NOW TOO LATE.

(From Los Angeles press)
WHY wouldn't it be a good plan to have the County Jail Prisoners' Mutual Benefit Association issue building as follows:
The Regular Weekly JAILBREAK
Will Take Place at the New County Jail at 2:30
NEXT SATURDAY AFTERNOON
Grandstands are being erected and proceeds from the sale of seats will be distributed:
1. Five per cent. to the Board of Supervisors.
2. Five per cent. to friendly contractors.
3. Ninety per cent. to the Van Dusen Lock Works of Detroit.
Manufacturers of steel saws, files and skeleton keys will occupy gala boxes with the Board of Supervisors.
WHO'S WHO AND WHAT IF IT
This is John R. McElroy, who was a yesterday awarded the consolation to run night sailing races from the county jail. Mr. McElroy is a water prominent county supervisor who would give special rates to occupying prisoners and at all times have transportation facilities ready and waiting near convenient exits.
There's one criticism of the new county jail. Supervisors then failed to provide (from the side poles for escaping prisoners who are in a hurry to make quick train connections.

IN the fall from grace, way back in Eden, the man told for something to WEAR.
A bachelor's heart is like a box.
Thirty-three is the Golden Age of woman—when she gets her "second wind", her second blooming — and so often, her second husband.
A man falls in love with a woman, not for what he sees in her, but for what he imagines she is hiding from him—some glorious, mysterious spiritual quality, for which he spends the rest of his life vainly searching.
Marriage used to be the Highway to Happiness—now it seems to be becoming just a little detour.
When a woman wants to rob a man of his resistance, she cuts the wires of his caution, switches on the current of his passion, and turns the spotlight on his vanity.

THE NATIONAL GUARDIAN

The national government supports an international ring organized to give Americans quick divorces. In Mexico a divorce while you wait costs $100, and there is a cheap divorce factory in Tuxtepec.

It would pay some promoter to rent some little island in a nice climate beyond the prohibition boundary, set up a government, and confine the island business to a first-class bar and a divorce court.

"It Was for That They Fought" 150 Years Ago

For Independence, the Life of Liberty

All Boston celebrates today, with pride and gratitude, and an enthusiasm appropriate to the occasion, "a great transaction."

And because it was "one of the greatest in all history," the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the expulsion of the British from Boston, properly enough finds representatives of the Government at Washington and the Government on Beacon Hill present and participating in the celebration.

It was the will and brain of Washington, as his Massachusetts biographer truly says, that carried through the gallant feat of arms which stands to the credit of New England soldiers whom Washington organized, trained and led in the long siege of Boston that finally ended in its evacuation. Of this extraordinary achievement, Washington's own words give us a good description:

"To maintain a post within musket shot of the enemy for six months together, without powder, and at the same time to disband one army and recruit another within that distance of twenty odd British regiments, is more, probably, than ever was attempted."

But Washington and his New England soldiers were quickened by the inspiration of the common cause for which they fought.

They did not fight for peace or prosperity. These they enjoyed, and other blessings of liberty, save that which only Independence could give—the right to make their own laws.

Experience had taught them "that there is, in the nature of things, no liberty without independence."

As the late George Frisbie Hoar said twenty-five years ago today:

"It was for that they fought. It was for that they died—some of them. It was for that they drove the English out of Boston."

And because Washington and his New England soldiers fought and triumphed, Nationalism "drove Imperialism out of Boston never to come back."

It is as true today as it was true one hundred and fifty years ago that there can be no Liberty without Independence. One hundred and fifty years ago the conflict came between the Nationalists and the Imperialists.

Today the issue is between Nationalism and Internationalism. The Nationalists fought then for independence, which is the life of liberty. Today the Nationalists strive to preserve that Independence, without which there can be neither Liberty nor Union within the household of the Nation.

A Great Saint and a Great Day

Honor the Man That Feared Nothing on This Earth, a Conqueror of Paganism

St. Patrick died more than 1,400 years ago, and he is as much alive today, in the hearts of millions of men and women, as he ever was.

It was he that took Christianity to Ireland, preaching and converting wherever he went, fearless, risking his life. He established for himself in the hearts of the Irish people a place that has never been taken from him.

Today, all over the world, in all the corners of earth to which the genius, enterprise and daring of the Irish people have carried them, St. Patrick is honored.

He is honored first as a SAINT, teaching men to lead better lives, and second, as a FIGHTING MAN, fear nothing.

He was told that he must not light his fire on a certain night, for that night was reserved for an earthly power. HE LIGHTED HIS FIRE.

He went to beard the barbarian pagan king of Ireland in his palace, on the Hill of Tara. That was not a king such as you see in the illustrated pictures of today, a king of Belgium or England, gentle and soft.

The king of Ireland was a real king, a man six and a half feet high, with the hide of a bull draped around his powerful shoulders and the strength of a bull in the muscles of his arm.

St. Patrick feared not kings or bulls or devils. He had the courage to do and he DID it.

If he came back today he would find plenty of work to do. He drove out the snakes, so tradition tells us.

And certain it is that there are no snakes to be found in Ireland now.

If he could come over to this country, where the Irish whom he loved, and who today love him, have been so successful, he would find many things that need DRIVING OUT.

The bootleggers and others would receive his attention. And they would find in him a man fearless and daring.

Some other and most eminently respectable individual of the serpent kind would undoubtedly attract his attention also and get it with energy.

Millions of men, women and children honor St. Patrick today and he DESERVES the honor.

He was devoted to his beliefs, absolutely fearless, ready to die for what he believed to be right.

Such men live long in the memories of other men. No wonder St. Patrick is remembered and honored today, though fourteen hundred years and more have rolled by since he went from this earth to his reward.

Running for Congress

THE CORK IS OUT!

SEN EDWARDS OF NEW JERSEY SAYS THEY ARE SELLING LIQUOR RIGHT IN THE HALLS OF CONGRESS

MANY PEOPLE WILL NOW RUN FOR CONGRESS!

LOOKS AS THOUGH EVERY BODY WAS SUFFERING FROM A COLD IN WASHINGTON

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU think you're brave, don't you?

You matter what the rest of the gang say about you, you're sure in your own heart that you'd be willing to lick your weight in wild cats—provided some one would supply the stick.

Fact, is you're just aching for a chance to show your grit. All right—here's your chance.

But it won't be anything as easy as fighting wild cats, brother. It will be something infinitely less spectacular than that—and just about $90,000,000 times as hard a test of the quality of your soul.

What sort of questions dare you ask?

There's the test of your courage, brother.

How straight can you look life in the eye? How frankly dare you demand the truth? How much bunkum will you reject—how much humbug will you accept?

Are you willing to see the faith you lived for broken, if that faith prove a false and empty thing?

Are you willing to face ridicule and scorn every for a new faith, though that faith be a dangerous and unproven thing?

You're willing to fight wild cats. But are you willing to fight smugness and stupidity, ignorance and superstition, laziness and selfishness, in yourself and others?

Wells Cites It

In his "Outline of History," R. O. Wells has thus used this sort of bravery. In speaking of that search for truth which once burned so fiercely in Greece, he says—

"It is not in the results it achieved, but in the attempts, it made that the true value for us of this group of Greek thinkers and writers lies. It is that that they answered questions but that they dared ask them. Never before had man challenged the world and the way of life to which he found his birth had brought him. Never had he said before that he would alter his condition. Tradition and a seeming necessity had held him to life as he had found it grown up about his birth since life immemorial. Hitherto he had taken the world as children still take the home as a habit in which they have been reared."

Is that the way you take life? Do you accept its hypocrisies, hypocrites and stupidities with meekness and resignation saying that they are the will of God?

Do you gloss over its brutality with a sticky coating of optimism, patriotism and sentimentalism?

Question, boldly, safely, to seek the land where that same right to question should be established as a way of life.

So came America.

Today that same America is traduced and ridden by a thousand sects and laws which make questioning the supreme hazard of our time.

Do you doubt in your secret heart that American policies are the most enlightened on the face of the globe?

Laws and Sects

Get up in the pulpit, rise in the classroom, stand on the street corner and say so in a loud, firm voice and ask what happens to you. I dare you!

Does your theory of God or the future life differ from that of the mob? Are you unable to see that white skin is superior to red or brown or black or yellow by divine ordinance? Do you believe that some form of "free love" would be better than our present muddled marriage situation? All right. Brave boy, just go out and try to say so!

What will be your fate? Ask John of Arc. Or Cicero. Or any one of America's political prisoners. Or Him, who paid for his questioning upon a cross.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Literature is the thought of thinking souls. —Carlyle.

You love a nothing when you love an ingrate. —Plautus.

Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices. —Ruskin.

He that has light within his own clear breast: May sit in the centre and enjoy bright day. But he that hides a dark soul and foul thoughts: Blenched walks under the mid-day sun. —Milton.

TEXAS GOES FURTHER THAN TENNESSEE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHEN the southern gentlemen of Texas go on the rampage it is time for the people of other States to stand from under.

The Sub-Committee of the Text Book Board which is appointed to delete certain passages relating to evolution in a biology text book for beginners, have expurgated the word "evolution" from a whole category of text books.

It is said that one member of the Committee urged that the word "evolution" and its definition be blotted out of dictionaries in use in the public schools. It was decided, however, that the dictionary did not come under the head of adopted books and that the Committee's powers did not extend that far.

Even evolution in plant life can no longer be taught in these schools, according to the report of the Sub-Committee. All of Burbank's demonstrations must go by the board.

Rules for health contained in Williams' "Healthful Living" is stricken out wherever they gave a hint that there has been any improvement through the ages in the status of man.

The sentence, "Mutilation gives life to new species," was eliminated, and another sentence, "Evolution does not teach 'there is no God,'" was also cut out.

The Sub-Committee deleted a passage saying that contrary to the ideas of some ill-informed people, no scientist has ever claimed that man is descended from the ape. On the other hand, scientists do agree that both man and the ape are descended from a common ancestor. This accounts for the great similarity in structure.

If the effete East and the effete Europe think they can put anything over on Texas in the way of culture or education, they are reckoning without their host.

Texas just naturally ain't goin' to believe in no evolution, by gum. The word is not used in the Bible nor the Hymn Book and can have no standing among decent people.

WHY DO YOU WASTE TIME WITH A FALSE FRONT?

If you could get away from that everlasting bluff that you think that you must make financially you might get some comfort out of life. You are worried and nervous all the time for fear something will happen that will stop your career in the crowd you want to follow.

You have adopted a pace too fast for you and you don't want to stop.

So you are using up your financial resources faster than you can replenish them. You can see that if everything goes right you can be broke or crook make up for all this expense. But if you should have illness or other drawbacks you cannot keep on traveling as you do now.

At the same time you begin to guess the fact that you are not getting anywhere with all this "hanging on by the eyebrows."

Why take such a big chance, gambling on your future? Why place of mind and at least some w'd comfort before you die. If you think the shallow friendships that depend upon the efforts you have to make to keep in line are worth anything you are going to be very much disappointed some day.

There are fair weather friends—not friends who are drawn to you by qualities of mind and heart. So stop your bluffing and be a real person.

The Greatest Cure Is EXCITEMENT

It Explains Much Faith Healing, Many Apparent "Miracles"

Trees die at the top, human beings also. Be excited mentally, cheerful, busy, and the body will be healthier and live longer. Half of what we call disease is really sickness of the mind.

And what most of us need is MENTAL EXCITEMENT, something that will stimulate the mysterious powers of the brain, causing them through the nerves to stimulate all the rest of the body.

Many a "chronic invalid" is simply the possessor of a chronically dull and uninteresting mind.

And many an apparent "miracle" or "faith cure" has been due to sudden revival of the mental excitement that was lacking.

Once a powerful man, unable to keep well or to keep sober, under ordinary conditions, went exploring in the Arctic, and from that time was both sober and healthy. He was INTERESTED, MENTALLY EXCITED.

All Chicago knows the case of a distinguished gentleman whose wife was a "permanent invalid," bedridden. Nobody ever suggested that she should get up and go out, for everybody knew that she "simply could not do it."

Betty had diphtheria, everybody worried, including Mrs. B. M. Hubert, who lived at Fort Worth, Texas. She immediately started to see her little granddaughter, not slowly by express train, but in a flying machine. When little Betty was told "Your grandmother is coming to see you, and she is flying through the air," there was immediate improvement in the child's condition.

She wanted to know just how her grandmother was flying, how HIGH she would fly, how FAST, whether she would run the flying machine herself or let somebody run it for her. She was on the road to recovery, and the doctor said that the best medicine was the news that the grandmother was flying from Texas.

This is Granny, who flew to her little granddaughter's bedside.

And this is the Little Girl, cured by pleasant excitement.
